About Me

I've always been keen on technology, both software and hardware since I was a child. Thanks to the current development of technology there are more and more ways to express yourself in a creative way. To some extent, this has is a mixture of my hobbies. From planning a build, aquiring and preparing all the required materials and finaly assembly. I enjoy the feeling of getting immersed in the process of building things from the grounds up which is always satisfying and rewarding.
